DETROIT (AP)—Experienced leadership, balanced by a few new faces, marked Michigan's Republican Party Monday as it headed into the spring election campaign. The party's state convention beat down criticism of its chieftain and reelected John Feikens of Detroit as State Chairman.

And it nominated this ticket for the April 4 state election:

For State Supreme Court—Chief Justice Leland W. Carr of Lansing, incumbent, and former State Treasurer D. Hale Brake of Stanton. State Board of Agriculture—Sarah Van Hoesen Jones of Rochester, incumbent, and Dale Stafford, Greenville newspaper publisher.

Board of Regents of the University of Michigan—J. Joseph Herbert of Manistique, incumbent, and William B. Cudlip of Detroit.

State Superintendent of Public Instruction—Dr. Clair L. Taylor of Lansing, incumbent.

State Board of Education—Stephen S. Nibet of Fremont, incumbent.

Hope To Forget Fight

Party leader hoped—and publicly pledged—that worker would not carry on tense convention fight which saw Feikens beat down, 994-598, an attempt to elect Arthur T. Inverson of Detroit as the new state chairman.

Feikens, nominated as the embodiment of the Eisenhower political philosophy in Michigan, won with the votes of the big cities and split about even in the rest of the counties.

He had aligned against him one big Wayne County district, the 17th.

Plane Wreckage Sighted In Italy; No Hope For 29

VIGNA DI VALLE, Italy (AP)—The wreckage of a Belgian Sabena airliner that crashed eight days ago with 29 aboard including four Americans was reported sighted today by pilots of a search plane and helicopter in the snow-covered Apennines of central Italy.

A plane from Vigna di Valle Air Rescue Center reported sighting the wreckage of the plane on the Sassatelli crest, at an altitude of 6,600 feet on Mt. Terminillo, about 60 miles northeast of Rome.

Carabinieri and police set out immediately on skis for the scene of the crash. There was virtually no chance any of the 21 passengers and eight crewmen could still be alive.

The area where the wreckage was sighted is rugged and wild. Fog and storms prevented search planes from covering the area adequately until today.

The airliner—a DC6—was heard Sunday night, Feb. 13, a few minutes before it was scheduled to land at Rome's Ciampino Airport. It was on a regular flight from Brussels to the Belgian Congo.

Faure Tackles Task Of Trying To Form New French Cabinet

PARIS (AP)—Edgar Faure continued his search today for enough unity among France's divided political figures to enable him to form a cabinet and end France's 17-day-old government crisis.

Faure—fourth man to try his hand since the National Assembly threw out Pierre Mendes-France Feb. 4—moved methodically through the formal calls and political negotiations required by the French system.

Police Bullets Kill New York Gunman In 90-Minute Battle

NEW YORK (AP)—A lone, angry criminal, who flung defiance and bullets at the world until the last, lay dead on a slab at the police morgue today—the only way he said they could get him.

Thousands of people—estimated up to 100,000 at times—jammed streets, rooftops and other vantage points yesterday to watch the blazing, 90-minute battle that cut down scrubby August Robles.

He made his last stand in an East Harlem tenement house. The massed forces of the law—guns, gas and 200 policemen—closed in on him. They carried his body out of the smoking house in a sack.

Today, with the wild drama over and the thickly populated uptown neighborhood back to workaday routine, this note on a police blotter told the end of the story:

"August Robles, 44 years, male, white, address unknown, dead on arrival at 67 East 112 St., Apt. 14. Subject died of gun shot wounds of chest during a gun battle with Police. No known friends or relatives."

most legislators, five Congressmen and the former political aides of U. S. Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield.

Cong. Alvin M. Bentley of Owosso, one of the principal anti-Feikens leaders, said he hoped Feikens' refusal to withdraw in favor of a candidate acceptable to all elements would not leave a serious split in Republican ranks.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford Jr. of Grand Rapids was the only Congressman noted in Feikens' corner.

With most of the state ticket nominees unopposed, Stafford's candidacy attracted interest second only to the chairmanship fight.

Eisenhower Endorsed

Stafford, entering the convention with the strongest preliminary support, found himself entangled accidentally in the Feikens-Inverson fight. It came close to costing him the nomination.

Inverson's managers set up delegate trades with the forces of P. Edward Goldhof, St. Joseph industrialist, who also was a candidate for the Board of Agriculture, governing body of Michigan State College.

In the balloting, Frank Merriam, Sanilac County farmer, drew heavy support with a "Young Republican" plan, but the bulk of the Goldhof strength eventually switched to Stafford and put him across, 859 to 522 for Merriam. Goldhof got 221 despite his withdrawal in Stafford's favor.

The delegates enthusiastically endorsed President Eisenhower for a second term, reportedly the first such action taken in any state.

Jobless Steelworker Kills 4 And Himself At Uniontown, Pa.

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (AP)—An unemployed steelworker killed his wife, 17-year-old daughter and two men, then shot himself to death. Police were looking today for a motive.

Officers found the bodies Sunday in the home of the steelworker, Robert Miller, 42. Miller was clutching a .25-caliber pistol in one hand and a flashlight, still burning, in the other.

A search of several hours uncovered the bodies of his wife Helen, 47, and his daughter Dolores buried in a pile of coal in the cellar. Mrs. Miller was fully clad. Her daughter was wearing a slip.

Coroner W. Ralston McGee said both women had suffered multiple skull fractures, apparently inflicted with an ax. He said Mrs. Miller probably had been killed early Wednesday and her daughter some 12 hours later.

Police went to the Miller home, in a drab mineside community eight miles from here, after Anthony Rivak, 34, a former coal miner, staggered into a tavern and said he had been shot by Miller.

The bodies of Miller and Steve Demko, 27, an auto mechanic who lived nearby, were found in a bed together in a downstairs room. In an upstairs bedroom was the body of an unidentified man about 25. Then the search for the wife and daughter began.

Bolter Black Willing To Run For Democrats

PORT HURON (AP)—Circuit Judge Eugene F. Black, onetime Republican state attorney general who bolted the GOP, says he is willing to run as a Democrat for the State Supreme Court.

Judge Black made the statement Sunday after the St. Clair County Democratic convention said it would offer his name for the post at the party's state convention Saturday at Grand Rapids.

He said his decision followed nomination Saturday by the Republican State Convention of former state treasurer D. Hale Brake for the judicial post.

Black said in a statement: "Even the thought of a bigoted Brake on an already wheezing judicial process is enough to call for vigorous counter measures."

"Regardless of who is nominated at Grand Rapids next Saturday, Mr. Brake's entry is bound to make of this campaign a test of cold-blooded political partisanship against warm-hearted support of true justice. He (Brake) is completely devoid of experience either as a judge or trial lawyer and the quality of mercy is congenially unknown to him."

Black was a Republican when he served as attorney general in the administration of the late Kim Sigler in 1947 and 1948. He broke with Sigler, charging the governor failed to keep campaign pledges to clean up state government.

Blizzard Blocks Roads In 4 States; 17 Dead

Detroit Youth Hunted In Fatal Car-Bump Game

DETROIT (AP)—Police sought a youthful hot rod driver who they said caused the death of one teenager and the injury of another attempting to lure them into a high speed automobile game of "bumper tag."

Killed was Gerald Back, 17, of suburban Dearborn township. He was riding with Lorne C. Johnston, 18, of Detroit, early Sunday when their car was rammed in the rear by another vehicle carrying five occupants.

The impact powered Johnston's car over a curb and sent it crashing into a tree. Johnston suffered cuts and bruises.

The car that hit the two youths sped from the scene without stopping.

Johnston said he pulled along side the second vehicle at a stop light.

"This guy at the wheel—I saw later he had real red hair—kept gunning his motor like he wanted to race," Johnston said. "I ignored him."

Johnston gave police this account of what happened then. "When we stopped for a second light I pulled behind him and he backed up and started pushing me."

"After that, the guy would pass me. . . then slow down in front. I saw the kids in the car. They all looked excited."

"I ducked into a lot of side streets and tried to duck him but he kept right after me. He'd get behind me and bump—must have done it four or five times."

"This car kept gaining on us and then it hit. That's all I remember."

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Three straight days of Nationalist air attacks have failed to stop the Red buildup of the Taishan Islands threatening nearby Nanchishan, reliable reports said today.

A second Communist buildup has begun on the Fukien province coast opposite the strategic Matsu Islands 100 miles west of Formosa, the Defense Ministry's information service said.

Los Angeles Has Brutal Murder

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Police today studied a bloody fingerprint and followed up names in a small address book, two leads in the savage slaying of Mrs. Karil Rogers Graham, 39, registrar at an art school.

The body of the attractive brunette divorcee was found Saturday night in her one-room apartment. She had been sadistically raped, police said, and her head had been crushed by at least two blows from a heavy weapon.

Four men acquaintances have been questioned but no charges have been filed. Detective Sergeants Jack McCreddie and Charles Detrich said the questioning was part of a routine check of all former acquaintances.

Mrs. Graham's body was found Saturday night by apartment building manager James Lipson, although a neighbor said she heard a scream about 5 a.m. Saturday. Lipson told police the door to her apartment was open. Mrs. Graham was lying face down on a couch. Her nightgown had been pulled over her head. Blood splattered the walls. An abstract painting of a bird of paradise, given her that night, hung over the death couch.

The firemen worked in below freezing temperatures in the mid-20s.

Peninsula Delegation Dominates Teen-Ager Safety Conference

EAST LANSING (AP)—A small group from the Upper Peninsula had a big say at the teen-ager Driver Safety Conference at Michigan State College over the weekend.

Unlike most of the delegates, who just left their home communities overnight, the Upper Peninsula group was gone from home for nearly a week to attend the conference.

Sixteen teen-agers were driven to Marquette in State Police cars from all parts of the Upper Peninsula for a first get-acquainted meeting Wednesday night.

Sheehan Heads Party

The party of 23, counting adults, made the trip to Lansing in a bus borrowed from the Northern Michigan College of Education. Upper Peninsula newspapers and others interested in the project helped finance the trip.

Sgt. Ralph Sheehan of the Marquette post, in charge of the State Police traffic and safety program in the Upper Peninsula, headed the party.

Sgt. Sheehan, a big greying Irishman, is known as a "missionary in traffic safety."

"The Upper Peninsula stresses traffic safety in the schools more than any other area in Michigan," said an official of the East Lansing State Police Headquarters Traffic and Safety Bureau. "Ralph has the crusading spirit and looks upon it as a morale issue."

"People don't like being pushed around," says Sgt. Sheehan of his approach to the subject. "There's too much emphasis on what you should not do in this business of traffic safety and not enough on the positive."

While other visitors stayed in college dormitories, the Upper Peninsula group was housed at a motel to allow them more freedom to enjoy the junket.

Sheehan proudly explained that his delegation included an iron miner's son and a millionaire's daughter.

Wind Piles Up Nebraska Drifts 12 Feet Deep

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
A blinding blizzard, termed by the Weather Bureau one of the winter's worst storms, whirled northward out of the Great Plains today and into Canada with moderated intensity.

It left snowdrifts as deep as 12 feet in Nebraska; blocked highways in at least four states; at least 17 persons dead and four missing.

The storm had not lost all its punch, however. Strong winds were piling snow in deep drifts in the Manitoba province of Canada, where police reported "hundreds" of persons were stranded on blocked highways. Winnipeg got 7 inches of snow.

Ministers Missing

Below the border the five deaths each reported in Colorado, Utah and Montana, and two in Wyoming were caused mostly by traffic accidents in visibility zero conditions during the driving storm of the past three days.

But authorities feared for three Nebraska ministers who left Gothenburg Saturday afternoon and a Westington Springs, S.D., rancher who braved the shrieking blizzard at 2 a. m. Sunday to see if his sheep were all right. None of the men have been seen since.

The eastern Dakotas felt the full fury of the storm Sunday. Pierre, South Dakota's capital, got a 13-inch fall driven by a 52 p. h. wind with gusts up to 73. Falls ranging to Huron's 10 inches and Watertown's 7 immobilized all transportation, with roads drifted shut and visibility zero.

The storm swept through the Red River Valley along North Dakota's eastern border, blocking all but railroad travel. In both Dakotas the temperatures were only a few degrees above zero.

Rain On Fringe

A sharp chill settled over the three-day storm's wake through Colorado, Montana, Wyoming and Nebraska. Denver, which got 7 inches, reported a temperature of 5 degrees above early today.

Thirty-three persons stranded during the storm in Nebraska had been rescued.

Off the fringe of the storm, rain or a freezing mixture of rain and snow fell in southeastern Minnesota, Illinois, Kansas, Missouri and Iowa.

A band of rain extended today from eastern Texas to the eastern Great Lakes region.

The line of freezing weather early today dipped sharply southward from the Great Lakes region into northern Texas and thence westward to the Western Plateau.

Eagle, Colo., was today's icebox, with 25 below zero. By way of contrast, Charleston, W. Va., had its warmest Feb. 20 in history—74 degrees.

Airliner Rams Big New Mexico Rock; 16 Bodies Hunted

ALBUQUERQUE (AP)—A search team reported early today it had found four bodies near a huge rock pinnacle in the Sandia Mountains where a Trans World Airliner crashed Saturday with 16 aboard.

Word trickled down by word-of-mouth from the mountainside that there was no sign of life in the wreckage.

The airliner rammed the pillar in the rugged snow-covered mountains just minutes after it took off.

Two search teams, weary and stiff after a night in subzero cold on the mountainside, started at dawn probing the crannies around the needle-shaped rock where the plane hit.

Pack animals were started up from the base camp at the foot of the 10,000-foot mountain to bring out the bodies and an air drop was scheduled to deliver equipment for removal of the bodies.

The plane took off from Kirtland Field, Albuquerque, about 15 miles southeast Saturday morning. Three minutes later veteran pilot I.R. Spang, Prairie Village, Kan., radioed all was well. That was the last heard from the twin-engine Martin 404, bound for Santa Fe, 70 miles away, on the first leg of a flight terminating at Bal-

Storm Batters Western Pacific; 385 Are Missing

TOKYO (AP)—A violent blizzard blasted the western Pacific from Formosa to the Kuriles today for the third day and left more than 385 persons dead or missing, most of them fishermen.

At least four Japanese are known dead and scant hope is held for the others.

In Manila, American President Lines reported that the luxury liner President Cleveland went to the aid of the stricken Japanese steamship Midori Maru in the East China Sea.

The liner, which stood by until relieved by the Orion Star, radioed she would be 24 hours late on the trip from Japan to the Philippines. The Midori Maru sent out an SOS Sunday, reporting it had water in the fuel tank and was unable to proceed. Aboard were 141 passengers and 25 crew members.

Another interisland steamer, the Nanshimaru, with 171 aboard was awaiting help from the U. S. seaplane tender Salisbury Sound, which was sent out from Okinawa. A Japanese freighter stood by.

Newspapers on Formosa reported three fishing boats capsized off southern Formosa Sunday but all crew members were rescued. Eleven other fishing boats, with about 50 men aboard, were missing and feared lost.

Smoking Habits To Be Surveyed

A national survey of the smoking habits of the American people will be conducted during February by the U. S. Bureau of the Census as part of its Current Population Survey, according to Supervisor Percy R. Millard of the Census district office at Milwaukee which will participate in the collection of the information. Special questions on smoking are being asked at the request of the U. S. Public Health Service. The information collected will be used in connection with the government's research program on the possible relationship between smoking and various types of diseases.

The questions will cover cigarette, cigar and pipe smoking. Persons 18 years of age and over who are members of the 25-thousand-household panel of the Current Population Survey will be asked about the number of cigarettes, cigars or pipefuls of tobacco smoked daily, the maximum number ever smoked regularly each day, the number of years they have smoked and other related questions. The answers to these questions will provide basic facts, now lacking, as to the numbers of smokers and nonsmokers by age, sex, color and other characteristics for each of the major regions of the United States.

The questions on smoking are in addition to the regular inquiries on employment and unemployment asked in the Current Population Survey which is conducted each month locally and in 229 other areas of the country. Local Current Population Survey interviews will be conducted during the week of Feb. 14 by Glen I. Beal of Gulliver.

Thailand Fears Border Attack

BANGKOK (AP) — Prime Minister Pibulsonggram said today 20,000 so-called free Thai troops are assembled in bordering Yunnan Province of Red China poised for a jump-off against Thailand.

The Thai field marshal addressed a news conference as heads of three delegations arrived for Wednesday's opening of the three-day conference of the Southeast Asia Defense Treaty Organization. Pibul told the 220 correspondents the free Thai troops are headed by former Thai Prime Minister Pridi Phanomyong. He added that Thailand could handle aggressive moves by them unless Red Chinese troops joined in an attack.

The Southeast Asia defense organization was formed in Manila with the aim of halting Communist aggression. Pibul said Thailand favored a strong organization dedicated to peace in this part of the world.

TIME AND LENGTH

The year is a measure of time; the light year is a measure of length. Light travels about 186,000 miles per second; in a year it will go about 5,880,000,000 miles, and that is one light year.

World Briefs

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP) — Booby traps on the Chinese Nationalist-occupied Tachen Islands killed at least 200 Communist troops who landed there Feb. 15, the Min Chu Evening News reported today. Quoting underground intelligence sources, the independent newspaper said the casualties occurred among 600 to 700 soldiers.

WALLASEY, England (AP) — H. R. B. Wood, the city education director, has ruled out homework for school children under the age of 12. "The only time home work is any good for children," Wood declared, "is when they are trying to catch up after a long absence from school."

SKEGNESS, England (AP) — Raymond Key, 7, fell through the thin ice of a pond near his home Sunday. His sister, Berly, 18, fell through trying to rescue him. Their mother, Mrs. Annie Key, 40, fell through trying to get her children out. All three were drowned.

QUETTA, Pakistan (AP) — Violent earth tremors rocked this West Pakistan city today for the third successive day. Death toll in the area over the weekend was put at 12. Nearly half the population, which with the suburbs totals more than 82,000, fled their homes. Many houses have been toppled.

Carlson Will Be Graduated From Marine Academy

Donald J. Carlson

On February 25, Cadet-Midshipman Donald J. Carlson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan L. Carlson of 529 S. 16th St., Escanaba, will be graduated from the United States Merchant Marine Academy at Kings Point, Long Island, N. Y. The United States Merchant Marine Academy is the youngest of the four federal academies.

Kings Point is to the Merchant Marine what West Point and Annapolis are to the Army and Navy. Cadet-Midshipman Carlson was appointed to the United States Merchant Marine Cadet Corps in February 1951 and after completing his Fourth Class (Freshman) year, he spent his second year studying and receiving practical experience aboard ships of the Merchant Marine. During this year he visited the Union of South Africa, Mozambique, Kenya, Tanganyika, Korea, and Japan.

After returning to the Academy following his sea duty, the cadet-midshipman spent his second (junior) and first class (senior) years taking advanced courses both in academic and technical subjects related to his specific field. Besides this normal curriculum, Cadet-Midshipman Carlson was actively engaged in football, intramurals and class president.

Upon graduation he will receive his license to sail as Third Officer aboard ships of the American Merchant Marine, a Bachelor of Science degree, and concurrent commissions as Ensign, United States Naval Reserve and Ensign, United States Maritime Service.

Cadet-Midshipman Carlson was graduated from Escanaba High School in the Class of 1949.

More Than 3,000 Attend Ice Show

Paid admissions at the 1955 Ice Varieties, Escanaba's annual home-talent ice show, totaled 3,068 for the five days, it was reported today by City Engineer Loren Jenkins.

The attendance was better than last year but still below the better years of the past, when admissions would total up to 6,000, it was reported. Last year's show was nearly flooded out by a thaw and had to be postponed.

Warmer weather also caused trouble on Saturday night and Sunday, softening the ice. Sunday's show was put on ice dotted with pools of water.

Heavy fog on Saturday night was believed to have caused a reduction in the attendance at the show, discouraging those who might have to travel to Escanaba from any considerable distance.

See to it that a shady past is past, and strive to keep your future clean.

Symphonette Will Feature Lighter Musical Program

The music of Cole Porter and other contemporary American composers will be played by the Green Bay Symphonette at its Karas Memorial Concert appearance here on Sunday evening, Feb. 27, as well as the standard musical classics.

The concert will be presented under sponsorship of the Karas Memorial Bandshell Committee for the benefit of the bandshell fund. It will open at 8 p. m. Sunday in Wm. Oliver Memorial Auditorium.

Conductor Ralph B. Holter reports that Cole Porter's work will be represented by that popular composition, "In the Still of the Night," and that other music on the lighter side will include Anderson's "Sleigh Ride" and Bohm's "Perpetual Motion."

The 55-piece Green Bay Symphonette will come to Escanaba for the concert without charge to the local committee, and all proceeds above actual travel expense of the Symphonette will go to the Karas Memorial Bandshell Fund.

Three Escanaba musicians will play with the Symphonette in its appearance here. They are Mr. and Mrs. Arol Beck and Elie De-Dryver. Mr. Beck plays the viola, Mr. Beck the string base and De-Dryver the cello.

To assist in defraying expenses of the Symphonette to Escanaba, the Karas Memorial Committee has invited a group of Escanaba men and women to serve as patrons and patronesses of the third annual Karas Concert.

Their contributions will pay expenses so that all ticket proceeds may go to the Karas Memorial Bandshell Fund, which now totals about $8,500.

The men and women who comprise the Green Bay Symphonette membership are not engaged in the full time pursuit of music as a profession. There are businessmen and women, housewives and professional men numbered among its musicians. It is a community orchestra which provides an opportunity for capable musicians to participate in the performance of good orchestral music.

Guiding spirits in the project are the conductor, Ralph Holter, and the orchestra timpanist, Otto Kapp, Green Bay businessman. The group will come to Escanaba because of its interest in assisting in a community music project—the Karas Memorial Concerts and the Karas Memorial Bandshell.

Concert tickets are on sale at Gust Asps, Delta Music Center and Marcelle's shoppe in Escanaba, and the Dehlin Drug Store at Gladstone.

Farmers Invited To Tractor School

A meeting at which farmers will discuss tractor maintenance will be held Wednesday afternoon Feb. 23, at the U. P. State Fair Grounds in Escanaba, with the session getting under way at 1:30 p. m. in the exhibition building.

Robert White of the agricultural engineering department of Michigan State College will conduct the meeting, it was announced by J. L. Heirman, Delta County agricultural agent.

Tractors require considerable care if farmers expect to get top performance from them over a long period of time, said Heirman. There are several "little things" a farmer can do to increase the life and performance of his tractor, he added.

"Here is the opportunity for tractor owners to get some excellent advice," Heirman said. "Tractors will be used at the meeting to illustrate how farmers can give proper care to this important piece of equipment."

Proper care of the tractor can save many dollars in repairs, and increases the satisfaction of the farmer in operating a piece of equipment in efficient operating condition. Heirman urged all farmers to attend the instruction meeting.

C&NW May Cut Train Service

GREEN BAY, Wis.—The possibility for substantial savings to be derived from consolidation of operations of two Chicago and North Western trains devoted largely to handling local express and mail between Green Bay and Escanaba is currently under consideration, according to John R. Cantwell, general superintendent of the railroad at Green Bay.

The trains, No. 121 northbound and No. 224 southbound, are among many being studied by the railroad's officials in an effort to reduce deficits from passenger train operations which were in excess of $23,000,000 in 1953. Cantwell said such deficits incurred through operation of trains poorly patronized or for which the public shows no real need heavily contributed last year to a net deficit of more than $4,000,000 for the railroad as a whole.

Preliminary studies show that the functions of trains 121 and 224 between Green Bay and Escanaba could be adequately absorbed by the other passenger trains at a saving to the railroad of approximately $100,000 a year. Cantwell said studies show No. 121 northbound, leaving Green Bay at 4:15 a. m. and arriving in Escanaba at 7:55 a. m., has been averaging less than 4 passengers per day, and has been devoted largely to handling local mail and express. Virtually the same situation applies to No. 224 southbound, leaving Escanaba at 4:10 p. m. and arriving in Green Bay at 7:50 p. m., with a daily average of less than 7 passengers per day.

"In the case of either train, passenger need as indicated by patronage is negligible," said Cantwell. "This is understandable since each train is used primarily for handling of local mail and express. However, the express shipments can be handled adequately by other trains and mail, also, can be handled via other means."

Cantwell said no action is contemplated for several weeks until studies are completed. He pointed out, however, that railroad officials are seriously concerned over the necessity to eliminate as quickly as possible those passenger train services where the high cost of operation fails to be justified by either public need or convenience.

Elementary School Curriculum Course To Open Tuesday

The first class in the University of Michigan Extension course "The Elementary School Curriculum" will be held on Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, from 6:30 to 9:30 at Escanaba Junior high school. This course is being taught by seven professors from the School of Education of the University and one from Northern Michigan College of Education.

The co-ordinator and first instructor in the course will be Dr. Robert S. Fox, associate professor in the school of education and principal of the University elementary school. His topic will be "What is the Elementary Curriculum?"

The course will give two semester hours of graduate or undergraduate extension credit. There will be ten two-hour sessions. The weeks of Feb. 28 and April 4 will be omitted. The course will end with the final examination during the week of May 9.

Following are some of the questions which will be discussed: On what basis do teachers make decisions about the curriculum? What should be included as essential? Should children's interests be allowed to determine what is studied? How does a school staff get started on curriculum improvement? Should a common philosophy of education get developed first, or should immediate classroom problems be the initial focus? What can a single teacher do without involving the entire staff or a committee of other teachers?

The course should be of interest to all those concerned with curriculum development on either the elementary or secondary level—the classroom teacher, the administrator, the supervisor and curriculum director, the parent and the layman.

For further information consult the University of Michigan Extension Service, Escanaba, telephone No. 2129.

Stambaugh Continues Water Fluoridation

STAMBAUGH—Fluoridation of Stambaugh's water supply will continue, the city commission decided Friday night.

The action came after commissioner Molle moved that the issue be placed on the April ballot to have the people vote for or against fluoridation. He received no support. Commissioner Dombroski, during the discussion of the issue, suggested that a referendum be conducted to decide the matter, but when Molle made his motion, Dombroski remained silent.

During the discussion, Mayor Mitchell and commissioners Wales and Hendrickson spoke in favor of fluoridation. They said that the city decided two years ago to fluoridate the water for a five-year period and that they had not had any complaints.

Fluoridation of the water supply was endorsed by Dr. Walter W. Werner, director of the Dickinson-Iron county health unit; Russell Johnson, of Escanaba, U. P. engineer for the state health department; and Dr. Leo Harris, Stambaugh dentist, who told the commission that state

Train That Carries Only Four Passengers Daily Is Unjustified

IF the Chicago and NorthWestern Railway petitions the Interstate Commerce Commission for authority to abandon trains No. 121 northbound and No. 224 southbound between Escanaba and Green Bay, the railroad undoubtedly can make out a pretty good claim for its request.

The railroad reports that these trains are carrying an average of only four passengers northbound and seven passengers southbound daily. The trains are used primarily to carry local mail and express and those who use these trains undoubtedly will find their abandonment inconvenient.

Words, Wit & Wisdom

By William Morris

To the surprise of practically nobody, it begins to appear that readers of this feature read other parts of the newspaper as well—even, indeed, the writings of other columnists. At any rate that's the conclusion forced on your correspondent by a number of items in recent mail—clippings of items from other news stories which my readers believe require explanation or correction.

For example, a New York reader sends along this bit from the writings of one of our most heralded cooking authorities: "One could buy a whole meal from this appetizer corner (she's talking about a supermarket), a Gargantuan meal. Being a gastroph, we didn't eat again until several days later."

"I've heard of gastronomes, but never of a gastroph," writes my correspondent. "Is this perhaps a new breed of epicure, one who eats only Gargantuan meals?"

The answer is no. A gastroph (from the Greek "gaster," meaning stomach and "sophos," wise) has precisely the same meaning as gastronome—one who is fond of good eating. Gastroph is, however, much less frequently seen in print and it is my guess that the cooking expert used it deliberately to pique the curiosity of her readers. If any of you want similarly to intrigue your friends, the word is pronounced GAS-truh-sof.

Still another clipping in the day's mail quotes William Holden commenting on his wife's plans to return to the movies. Mrs. Holden, in case anyone has forgotten, was the lovely Brenda Marshall. "She's so disinterested in coming out of retirement," Mr. Holden allegedly said, "she doesn't even answer to the name Brenda Marshall any more!"

My correspondent belongs to that vanishing breed of stalwart souls who would like to preserve the distinction which once existed between "disinterested" and "uninterested." What Mr. Holden meant, of course, was that his wife is uninterested in a return to films. She just doesn't care about it.

A truly disinterested person is one who may be much concerned with a situation—as a judge in a court hearing—but who is not influenced by personal motives, not biased or prejudiced. Thus, it is entirely possible to be interested in something while taking a disinterested view of it.

Try And Stop Me

By BENNETT CERF

John O'Hara, distinguished author of "A Rage to Live" and "Farmers Hotel," rallying to the defense of television, tells of a friend whose sprawling household includes children by his first marriage, children by his present wife, and step-children whom his wife brought with her. There are, roughly, ten children in all.

"Before we bought a TV set," this friend assured O'Hara, "this place used to be a madhouse. Kids all over the house. But then we installed the set in our cellar. Now the kids spend their lives there. "Once a week we throw them a couple of fish heads and everybody's happy."

Harry Ruby writes about a distinguished psychiatrist who beseeched a patient, "I beg you to stand up for a little while at least." "Why should I stand up?" protested the patient. "I'm perfectly comfortable." "But I'm not," the psychiatrist assured him. "You're sitting on my head."

Nevertheless, it is impractical to expect a public carrier to continue to provide service that is not well supported and particularly when other trains are available on the same routes.

The C&NW Railway lost $23,000,000 last year in its passenger service and this loss more than offset profits on freight service with the result that the net loss for the year exceeded $4,000,000. It is understandable that the railroad is seeking ways and means of effecting economies.

The economies that can be achieved from a consolidation of operations serve both the railroad and the public. Obviously the NorthWestern cannot continue to operate at a deficit. If the elimination of unprofitable runs such as trains 121 and 224 can put the railroad on a firm financial basis, the communities are assured of continuation of the more essential train schedules.

The railroad reports that it lost approximately $100,000 last year in operating these trains between Escanaba and Green Bay. This represents then a subsidy in this amount to the comparatively few persons and business firms that use these trains.

There has been in the past a tendency for the public to vigorously oppose every request by a railroad for discontinuing any of its services. No one likes to lose transportation facilities. But in this instance, if the figures presented by the railroad are correct, it would be unjust to attempt to force the railroad to maintain such an unprofitable operation.

A train that carries an average of less than four persons daily in one direction and less than seven daily in the other can hardly be classified as an essential passenger train.

Another southbound train leaves Escanaba four hours and a half later than No. 224 and another northbound train leaves Green Bay a couple hours earlier than train No. 121. In addition the C&NW 400 southbound in the morning and northbound in the evening serves the same route.

Today In Washington

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON—Most of the emphasis in the news nowadays is on the Far East, so it is natural that the discussion on Wednesday night by Secretary of State Dulles about the islands off the coast of China received primary attention, but the fact is there was something far more sensational to be read between the lines of the same address. It was the subtle yet deliberate approach to the people of Soviet Russia over the head of the existing government.

In times like these, speeches by the secretary of state are not casual affairs. They have their genesis in memoranda prepared after many hours of consultation by planning staffs and specialists in particular fields of international affairs. So what Mr. Dulles said to the people of Soviet Russia—for his speech was widely broadcast throughout the world—is especially significant because of its deliberateness. He declared with respect to the recent repudiation of Malenkov as premier: "Undoubtedly what we see is in part an elemental, personal struggle for power. But also one can perceive the outlines of a basic policy difference. There must, in Russia, be those who are primarily concerned with the welfare, the security and the greatness of the Soviet Union and its people. But there are others who would have the Soviet Union and its powers serve primarily as a tool of international communism and as a means of achieving its worldwide ambitions. These two ends, the one symbolized by the state and the other by the (Communist) party, do not always coincide.

PARTY STATE SEPARATE

"To us, the party and the state in Russia usually seem indistinguishable, because many individuals serve in dual capacities. But Lenin and Stalin constantly emphasized the distinction between the two. 'The party,' said Stalin, 'is not and cannot be identified with the state power.'"

"We also should keep that distinction in mind. The time may come—and I believe that it will come—when Russians of stature will patriotically put first their national security and the welfare of their own people. They will be unwilling to have that security and that welfare subordinated to the worldwide ambitions of international communism. If their point of view should prevail, then, indeed, there could be a basis for worthwhile negotiation and practical agreements between the United States and the new Russia. Then there might be reactivated the historic friendship between our countries and our peoples."

The foregoing paragraphs constitute a masterpiece of diplomatic expression and could have a tremendous influence on the course of world affairs if they are given the emphasis abroad that they deserve. For it will be noted that Mr. Dulles plainly calls for a reawakening of Russian patriotism, a return to the spirit of national pride which enabled the government of Moscow in past generations to play a vital role in the maintenance of the peace of Europe.

The distinction is clear—the Communist party is not satisfied to confine its ideology to Soviet Russia but must carry on a "cold war" and engage in tactics of infiltration to undermine all the other governments of the world in what has become known as Communist imperialism. But there are men—Mr. Dulles calls them "Russians of stature"—who will "patriotically put first their national security and the welfare of their people."

WHO ARE LEADERS?

Who are the men to emerge as leaders in that movement? Mr. Dulles mentions no names, but one wonders if he wasn't thinking of a group which is typified by Marshal Zhukov, who, like other military men, fought solely to defend Russia and who now look askance at meddling beyond Russia's own borders in a worldwide conspiracy that can only lead to eventual war.

What Secretary Dulles is calling for is the rise of a government in what he terms "the new Russia." This, he says, would bring a "basis for worthwhile negotiation and practical agreements between the United States and the new Russia."

This is a better formula than "coexistence," because it does not assume a continued domination of the satellite states nor the continued oppression of the masses in Soviet Russia with armament burdens. It implies also the establishment some day of a free government in Moscow, or at least one that is not ruled by a dominant political party which is so tied into the government as to commit it to worldwide imperialism aimed at the conquest of other peoples.

The speech by Mr. Dulles lays down a platform of idealism which ought to have the enthusiastic support of our allies and bring great encouragement to the people behind the Iron Curtain.

Senate Dean Foresees Years Of Peace If No War By Summer

WASHINGTON —(NEA)—If the U. S. can avoid major war until summer, the odds of having peace for many years thereafter will be good.

It may not be the perfect peace, may be blemished by minor conflicts, but there will not be a war of world annihilation by atomic weapons.

This prediction comes from white-maned Sen. Walter George (D., Ga.), the 76-year-old Dean of the Senate, who is in an excellent position to make it. As chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations committee he is a key man in helping to guide America past the treacherous shoals of war.

With a Democratic Congress and a Republican administrative branch George's statesmanship is vital. A lesser man could do irreparable harm in the spot.

"The job is inherently non-partisan," George says, and any chairman who kept himself at a partisan level would be doomed to failure."

George's recent aggressive support for President Eisenhower's request for authority to act in Formosa is typical of the enlightened bi-partisan machinery which George means to maintain.

First, the senator sees eye-to-eye with the President on most major foreign policy matters. "Oh, there may be details here and there where we differ, but it's nothing that isn't easily and quickly worked out," he says.

Second, George's 33 years of dignified service in the Senate has made him probably the most respected man in that august body. When he makes one of his infrequent speeches, with old-fashioned, rafter-raising oratory, full membership usually sits in rapt attention.

His years have slowed him slightly. He was an enthusiastic hunter and fisherman and still does a little fishing when the Senate is not in session.

"But I have trouble telling whether a dove is five feet away or 15," he complains.

His opposition to drinking has always kept him from the liquid type social life here. In recent years he and his charming wife, "Miz Lucy," have restricted their social life even more.

He's an avid TV fan, however, watching every athletic event and news show until the stations go off the air. He loves to read mystery books when he gets time from his prodigious official reading.

It's the careful attention to details of the committee work, rather than flamboyant espousal of great causes, which has earned George the great reputation he enjoys in foreign relations and fiscal matters.

In this regard the years have not dulled his vision. He's in his office early and stays late, working tirelessly. "He'd come earlier and stay later if the staff would," says his son Heard, the Senator's administrative assistant. Another son was killed in action during World War II.

George is jealous of the rights of his committee and feels that the chairman's role is not to be either a rubber stamp or negative critic.

"Although the committee and its chairman cannot make foreign policy I take a positive position on all matters coming before us," he says.

"I offer suggestions and participate in planning when I feel that

SENATE FOREIGN POLICY PILOT Walter George of Georgia catches up on some momentous headlines from Russia while Washington correspondents await his observations on the news.

I am informed on a particular situation," he adds.

He now feels that the State Department is cooperating fully with the committee. "They used to call us in after decisions were made and announced," he recalls. "But now they do their best to let us in on planning beforehand and it is working out fine."

Because of his age there are periodic rumors that the Senator is suffering from poor health. "I have to knock on wood during the winter," he admits, "but right now my health is fine."

This is apparent from his trim bearing and display of mental and physical alertness, although a weaker man could long ago have been bowed by the events which have burdened him.

He is proud of his humble birth on a Georgia tenant farm. In spite of poverty he won a good education, a law degree from Mercer and a reputation as a persuasive orator.

That was, followed by private practice, election as solicitor of the Vienna, Ga., city court, then to a State Supreme Court judgeship and finally to the Senate in 1922 to succeed fiery old Sen. Tom Watson.

He defeated Franklin Roosevelt's attempt to "purge" him in the senatorial campaign of 1938. In spite of this clash with FDR, George continued to work closely with the President during World War II.

Gabbiest Birds Live In Africa And India

WASHINGTON —The African gray parrot and Indian hill myna rank as the champion "conversationalists" among birds that mimic human sounds.

Whatever the situation among higher bipeds, the male bird usually outtalks the female, says the National Geographic Society. This is probably because the male is endowed with greater vocal capacity. He is the song bird. The female just chirps.

The most familiar "talkers" are certain types of parrot, including the popular species of parakeet known as budgerigar, the garrulous myna, other members of the starling family, and a wide range of Corvidae—crows, ravens, jacksnaws, magpies and jays.

Utter Vowellike Sounds

Such birds, which have endeared themselves to animal lovers since ancient times, have given rise to curious facts and fallacies.

Bird sound organs are quite different from those of humans. A bird cannot utter true consonant sounds that human beings articulate chiefly with the lips. But birds, like ventriloquists, make vowellike sounds.

Experts say talking birds, like songsters, have more muscles than non-talkers in the spring or voice organ at the lower end of the windpipe.

Some persons cling to the fallacy that splitting a bird's tongue helps it talk. Experts agree that a mutilated bird not only may be unable to talk; it can no longer make characteristic sounds.

Teaching a bird to talk entails the painstaking process of taming a young specimen, keeping it separated from other birds, and frequently repeating the words to be mimicked.

Some Like Own Noises

Birds raised in pairs or groups seldom talk. They stick happily to their native noises. A talking bird that has become thoroughly identified with humans is considered useless for breeding.

Birds, especially gabby males, sometimes develop astounding vocabularies. Most experts agree, however, that a bird doesn't actually know what it is saying and cannot make any practical use of its word power; for example, by saying "food" when hungry.

One of the most celebrated talking birds in recent years was Raffles, a glossy black myna with the familiar orange beak, velvety yellow wattles and white wing spots. Raffles performed at wartime bond rallies and once whistled the national anthem with the San Francisco Symphony Orchestra. In 1946, it died of a cold caught while performing in a veterans' hospital.

Stories of talking birds are legion, some of them startling if true. The German naturalist Humboldt claimed to have met in South America a venerable green parrot "which remained the sole possessor of a literally dead language, the whole tribe of Indians which spoke it having become extinct."

Edson In Washington

By PETER EDSON

(NEA Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(NEA) — Right after Vice President Richard M. Nixon gets back from his tour of the Caribbean countries in March, he's going out to California on another type of good-will mission.

This will be an attempt to unite all factions of California Republicans and take measures to prevent a big party split in 1956.

Here in Washington, Vice President Nixon and Sen. William F. Knowland let on that there is no rivalry between them. Such warfare as exists today is characterized as feuding between factions that know one man better than the other, or that think they stand better chances of getting jobs by going all-out for one or the other favorite.

One curious sidelight of the situation is that Mrs. Nixon and Mrs. Knowland are good friends. They talk over the supposed rivalry of their husbands and get pretty indignant about it, wanting to write letters to the editors to deny publicly that there is bad blood between them.

While this makes lovely peace talk, cynical political observers are betting all this harmony will vanish if President Eisenhower decides not to run again.

Neither Californian will discuss what what will happen if Ike doesn't run, but the are trying to let on that they won't be rivals for the number one job.

Also, all the peace talk overlooks the importance of Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, the real power in the state since ex-Gov. Earl Warren became chief justice of the U. S.

THE PENTAGON has been having a private crime wave on the huge parking lots which surround the Department of Defense headquarters. Metropolitan Park Police, who guard the area, are finding it difficult to break up the abuses.

Last month 32 cars were stolen and 48 cars were broken into. Favorite trick of the thieves is to take the jack out of the back of a car and steal one tire and the spare.

All Pentagon employes have been warned to lock their cars and keep anything of value out of sight. But breaking in and stealing still persists.

SEN. ROBERT KERR (D., Okla.), in a political newsletter to his state the other day, mentioned that Mrs. Eisenhower had been particularly attracted by the hat worn by a lady guest at a White House reception.

Senator Kerr says that it was reported to him that Mamie exclaimed to the woman, "My dear. That cute hat. Turn around and let me see it." The hat was described for the senator as "Quite a fetching thing—a small dressy hat made of black velvet and gold lame, trimmed in bugle beads and topped by miniature antennae from which tangled little gold tassels."

"You know," Senator Kerr told his constituents, "if such an individual antenna device could be actually used for broadcasting, instead of receiving, I might want to get one for myself."

"ANXIOUS TO PROTECT their subsidies and scuttle all independent competition, the big trunk airlines are spending some of their profits to wine and dine Senate aides . . . in a series of 'nonpartisan' meetings—cocktails, dinner and propaganda," says the Aircoach Transport Association newsletter.

"Since the Civil Aeronautics Board allows the scheduled airlines to charge their dues to the Air Transport Assn. into their mail-pay base," the letter continues, "it will really be 'the taxpayers who will help pay for the dinner, the menu of which might read like this:

- Pure Monopoly
- Prime Ribs of Mailpay,
- Rich Gravy
- Potatoes a la Treasury
- Dolland Greens
- Lettuce, Inter-Island Dressing
- Sparkling Franchise, 1938
- Chocolate Profitore
- Big Four Cookies
- Demi Tasse
- (for Local Service Lines)
- Corona Pan Am.

"After dinner, the usual act, practiced many times across the country, is to denounce the independent airlines in ringing tones."

DR. ALLEN V. ASTIN, director of the National Bureau of Standards, was rehearsing a demonstration of new methods for measuring minute differences in temperatures prior to an open-house exhibit. Several pieces of hot and cold iron were being used, but in arranging them, they got mixed up.

Not wishing to burn himself, the scientist announced: "And now you will have a demonstration of heat measurement without the benefit of instruments." Thereupon he wet his finger and proceeded to touch the pieces of iron, finding the hot ones by the sizzle.

Regardless of how many autos are sold there doesn't seem to be any more room on buses.

The Doctor Says . . . As a Rule Hemophilia, or Easy Bleeding, Is Hereditary

By EDWIN P. JORDAN M. D. — Written for NEA Service

There is a peculiar and most distressing kind of easy bleeding known as hemophilia or sometimes as the "Royal disease." The reason for the latter name is that Queen Victoria of England carried the hereditary defect which led to hemophilia and many of her male descendants developed the disease.

A good deal has been learned about hemophilia in recent years. As a rule the hereditary defect is carried by the female of the species but the bleeding itself develops only in the male. However, there have been a few cases of hemophilia in women and one extensive study of the bleeding tendency showed that it could be produced in dogs as well.

A FAMILY HISTORY of bleeding can be obtained in about four out of five patients with hemophilia. In the others it seems to have arisen without family history.

In its typical form hemophilia can be readily identified by the slowness of blood coagulation and the difficulty in stopping bleeding following a cut, extraction of a tooth, a slight blow, or some other minor operation. Fortunately, however, there are some extremely mild cases of the disease and for them in particular the newer diagnostic tests are of great help.

IN SEVERE CASES bleeding under the skin, into the muscles, or into the joints may result in serious complications. Internal bleeding, which would stop of itself in a normal person, can be serious in someone with hemophilia.

All the answers to hemophilia have not yet been obtained, although some progress in studying it has occurred in recent years. It has been shown, for example, that there are several varieties of hemophilia and the method of differentiating between true hemophilia and other diseases which result in abnormal bleeding have been greatly improved.

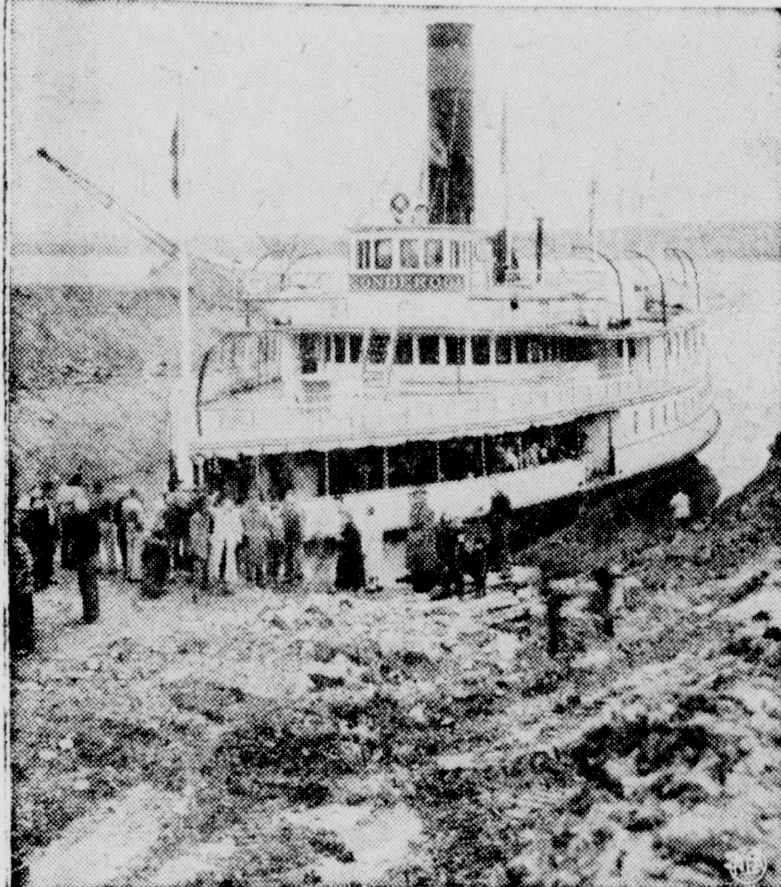

IT IS PARTICULARLY encouraging to note the establishment of a national organization to combat this disease (Hemophilia Foundation, 6 East 32nd Street, New York 17, N. Y.), which is supporting research on hemophilia. Already this organization, founded in 1949, has a distinguished medical advisory council and 14 chapters in cities throughout the United States.

Perhaps the distinguishing feature of hemophilia is its nature as a hereditary disease, largely transmitted to males through the female lines. There are a few other human disorders of a similar nature in this respect but hemophilia is surely one of the most important.

Famed Steamer's Last Voyage Is A Dry Run

Retired after 49 years of service on Lake Champlain, the S. S. Ticonderoga is making her last voyage—a two-mile trip on dry land. At its end is a permanent "anchorage" on the lawn of the Shelburne Museum, at Shelburne, Vt. To get her there from Lake Champlain's Shelburne Bay, a huge drydock of earth was bulldozed around her. When this was filled with water, the 900-ton vessel floated to ground level. Waiting there were two 16-wheeled cradles, resting on 400 feet of especially laid double tracking. The ship will move the length of the tracks and then they will be picked up and laid again in front of her for another roll forward and so on. It will take two months to complete the move across two highways, a swamp, through a woods and over a railroad track. Last of the lake's sidewheelers, the Ticonderoga in her day carried more than a million passengers and traveled the equivalent of 30 trips around the world.

Her whistle blows, but her walking beam and paddlewheels are idle, as the Ticonderoga is nudged into a man-made drydock on the edge of Shelburne Bay.

Raised in the drydock to ground level, Ticonderoga slides onto cradles resting on railroad tracks, ready to make her final voyage into history.

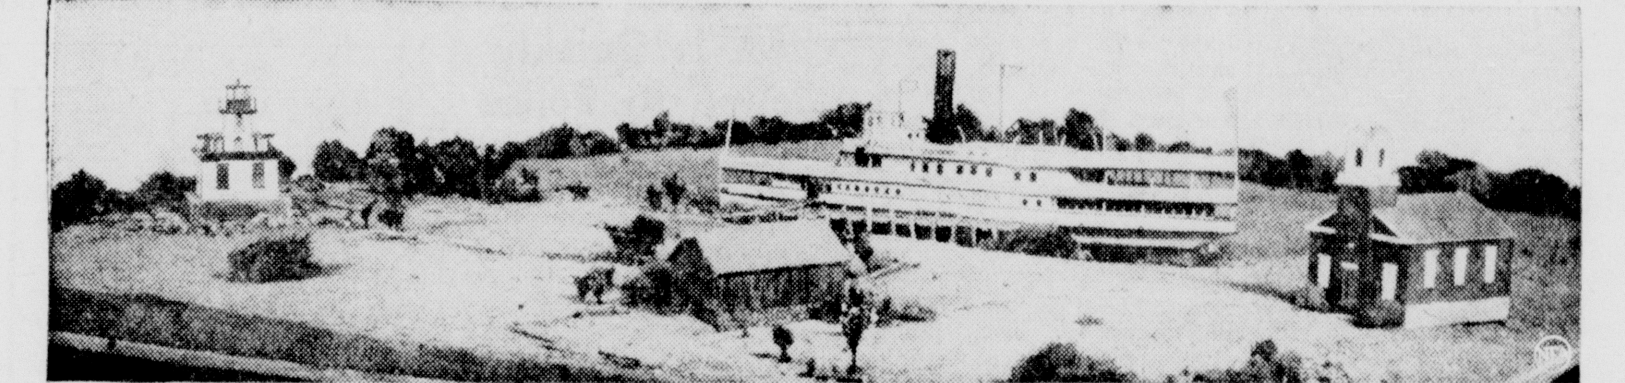

Table-top model shows how Ticonderoga will appear when she reaches her "anchorage" on the Shelburne Museum grounds. With her will be the Colchester Reef lighthouse, recently removed from Lake Champlain, a New England meeting house, a Colonial church and a restored covered bridge.

ANN ARBOR (AP)—A movie, "the Locks of Sault Ste. Marie," won such praise as "wonderful" when it was exhibited Friday to newsmen and University of Michigan regents.

Prentiss M. Brown, chairman of the Mackinac Bridge Authority and a member of Osborn's Soo Centennial Commission, said the picture was "extremely well done."

Dr. Harlan H. Hatcher, university president, estimated the cost of the movie, which depicts early history of Upper Michigan, economic importance of the Great Lakes and the history and operation of the locks.

An Announcement

Several meetings have been held here in Escanaba recently by representatives from local Industry, Labor, Business and the Professions to discuss the matter of organizing the widespread local opposition to the sale of our Electrical Distribution System.

We are now happy to report that plans for the formation of an organization to consolidate and coordinate local community opposition to the sale of our electrical distribution are well under way.

We wish to state clearly and emphatically that our ONE AND ONLY PURPOSE is to save our Electrical System from the Private Power Monopoly.

Our group, which will be known as the S-O-E-S (Save Our Electrical System) Volunteers, will leave no stone unturned in our efforts to defeat the proposal which would allow the Private Power Monopoly to move in and take over our electrical utility.

In our opinion our Electrical Utility is the most valuable economic resource that the people of Escanaba own today and we don't want to sell it. We believe that the sale of our electrical utility to the Private Power Monopoly would be an economic tragedy of the most serious consequences to the future of our city.

Our grandfathers and our fathers wanted all of the people of Escanaba to own all of the City's Utilities. We believe that our children and our grandchildren should have the same opportunity to enjoy the same personal interest and pride of ownership in these important economic resources that we have had.

To us Intellectual Honesty is still an important virtue and we intend to do everything we can to bring out all of the Truth about the plans of the Private Power Monopoly to move in and take over our City.

Every effort will be made to expose all of the glaring fallacies in the fantastic claims which the Professional Power Propaganda Writers for the Private Power Monopoly have flooded this city for the past six months. We know, as the old saying goes, we haven't seen anything yet.

We have no intention of minimizing the magnitude of the task we have undertaken. With unlimited money at its disposal the Private Power Monopoly has been conducting a carefully planned Professional Propaganda Campaign in Escanaba for the past six months. It will be no easy task to defeat the proposal to sell our Electrical Utility. But it can be done and we intend to do it.

We need the help and support of every person in Escanaba who believes with us that we should keep the ownership and control of our Electrical Utility in our own hands. We hope to enlist the aid of every Escanaba resident who shares our views in this matter so vital to the future of our Community.

Nomadic Thief In FBI Top 10

WASHINGTON (AP)—Garland William Daniels, a nomadic check-passer and car-thief, Friday was designated as one of the FBI's "10 most wanted men."

Daniels, now 50, escaped in late 1951 from the U. S. Public Health Service hospital at Lexington, Ky., where he was under treatment as a narcotics addict. Since then he has been at large.

The FBI said that in the spring of 1954, Daniels got a position with a labor union in California under the name of "Bob Colman," and stole 30 blank checks bearing the union's name, afterwards passing them fraudulently in California, Nebraska, Utah and Alabama for amounts ranging from $20 to more than $200.

As recently as last Dec. 1, he was identified as the "Rudy Snyder" who passed a bad check at Miles City, Mont.

Daniels is described by the FBI as a "sharp" dresser, of medium height and medium muscular build with gray-blue eyes and receding brown hair. He has a jagged 1½-inch cut scar on his neck below the left ear.

Scotland Buried In Snow; Gales Sink Freighter

LONDON (P)—A storm-battered freighter sank in Genoa Harbor today and another was grounded several hours off blizzard-swept Dover as new snows raked Scotland and blanketed Europe.

At Genoa, the 4,147-ton Swedish freighter Nordanland sank with a 600-ton cargo of carbide. Two gaping holes had been torn in her hull by one of the most severe storms to strike the area in years. A rescue vessel had spent 36 hours trying to pump water from the Nordanland to keep her afloat. Her 40-man crew had abandoned ship Saturday night.

The 7,173-ton Italian freighter Monviso crashed onto rocks under the South Foreland cliffs at Dover early today, but tugs wrenched her free at midmorning.

Four more inches of snow fell in northern Scotland, already floundering under a thick white blanket from almost continuous storms last week.

Five tons of fodder were dropped in 18 plane flights from Kinloss Sunday in livestock relief missions.

The first train to leave Wick since last Wednesday steamed out of the station this morning, preceded by a snow plow.

Americans Today Walk Less Than Forebears

WASHINGTON—The modern American, the world's greatest rider, sometimes proves he still can walk—for fun.

Recently a Navy officer stepped off 13 miles from one end of Manhattan to the other, the final lap in a 502-mile jaunt over every street on the island.

Other Americans have performed more prodigious feats with their feet. But it doesn't happen very often, says the National Geographic Society. For foot experts point out that no American generation has walked less than the present one and has paid less heed to Thomas Jefferson's dictum that "Of all exercises walking is the best" or to Walt Whitman's famous lines:

"Afoot and light-hearted, I take to the open road,
"Healthy, free, the world before me."

9 or 10 Miles a Day

According to one study, the American man, 21 through 65, averages 9 miles a day, the woman 10 miles. The high school student hoofs 16 miles, the policeman pads 18, and a waiter 13.

Probably the outstanding walkers are the English. Hundreds of years ago their walking excursions over the placid countryside developed into pedestrian contests. English heel-and-toe speedsters set the world pace with a formidable array of long-standing records.

Possibly the best publicized hike was Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas's 189-mile, 8-day tramp along the Chesapeake and Ohio Canal from Cumberland, Md., to Washington with eight companions last year.

The greatest hike of all time? That's impossible to pin down. But—late in 1937 Julio Berrisbertia, 19, a Venezuelan Boy Scout, left home and plodded over northern South America, Central America, Mexico and 47 states of the United States. At the end of four years he had covered 20,000 miles and had walked through 50 pairs of boots. Some people think that's the record.

Drivers Ticketed Following Mishaps

Two accidents were reported in this area over the weekend.

Only a few sailors were reported aboard at the time of the blast. Normal complement of this Snorkel submarine is about 85 officers and men.

The Navy identified one of the injured crewmen as Seaman Bobbie D. Pulliam. He was burned on the face and arm.

The civilian workers, taken to Marine Memorial Hospital, were identified as Howard F. Swift, 36, South San Francisco, and Robert E. Williams, 24, Oakland, Calif.

All other names were withheld. Two lesser explosions shook the gas-filled forward section of the submarine early today—four hours after the initial blast—and workers were pulled off the ship.

Minister Freed In Fatal Beating

HOUSTON (P)—A handsome evangelist held for questioning in the fatal pistol-beating of a Baptist minister's widow was freed Sunday.

Right after his release, the Rev. Jesse Bolin vowed to stay here until the case is solved, threw himself into the probe and cleared up one point himself.

Police, meanwhile, said they had no new leads.

Bolin, 39, walked out of jail at 9:50 a.m. after taking his third lie detector test earlier in the morning. Detective B. M. Squyres, the polygraph operator, said the last test convinced him the evangelist withheld no information that might help solve the murder of Mrs. Lucille Quarles.

Bolin had been held since Thursday.

Homicide Squad Lt. W. C. Doss said Bolin phoned the office five or six times after his release.

Michigan was a guest of Charles Follo at today's Rotary Club meeting.

Mrs. Quarles, 50, was slain Tuesday night in her home here. She suffered four skull fractures.

She was the widow of the Rev. Louis Quarles, former pastor of the Curry Road Baptist Church.

Bolin, also a Dallas used car dealer, told officers the families were old friends and that Mrs. Quarles had loaned him money for various business enterprises.

Advertising helped make the difference

FOLKS USED TO BUY refrigeration in fifty pound pieces. Frozen foods were unheard of... ice cubes an impossibility... and that drip pan under the ice box always seemed to be overflowing. Today, a silent, white-enameled ice man stands in millions of kitchens.

But to mass produce millions of refrigerators, manufacturers must be able to sell them by the millions. Only by advertising can a manufacturer talk to millions of people at one time.

ADVERTISING TELLS the story of new refrigerators... and helps sell them. The more it sells, the more must be made — keeping the production lines and the jobs going. The result: newer, better appliances at prices more people can afford to pay. Advertising helped make the difference — in refrigerators, and in our American way of life.

Pre-Lenten Rally At Bethany Is Well Attended

The annual pre-Lenten Rally, sponsored by the Delta County Ministerial Association, was held Sunday afternoon at Bethany Lutheran Church in Escanaba, with a large attendance in spite of inclement weather.

The sermon of the rally service was delivered by the Rev. Karl J. Hammar of Central Methodist Church. The Rev. J. Millard Ahlstrom of St. Peter, Minn., who was scheduled to speak, was unable to reach Escanaba when his plane was grounded by a storm.

A massed choir under the direction of Mrs. Cory Hartbarger sang the traditional anthem, "God So Loved the World."

The service opened with an organ prelude by Don Aronson, who was organist of the rally. It included hymns, "There Is a Green Hill Far Away," "O Sacred Head Now Wounded" and "Beneath the Cross of Jesus" by the audience. The call to worship was given by the Rev. Meldon Crawford the Scripture reading by the Rev. Paul Horst and the closing prayer and Benediction by the Rev. Clifford Peterson.

Stereotypes Used By Directors To Get Cheap Laughs

By ALICIA HART

When a movie or theater director is faced with a stage direction—"a funny old woman enters"—he knows from practice what to do. And when his production is viewed, there she is, to be sure.

She's wearing a rayon or silk dress in black or navy with a hideous large flower pattern. She walks stooped, with mincing steps, fingering the inevitable peplum with one hand, dangling a drooping handbag from the other. And she is funny. The audience laughs before she speaks a line.

Do Not Fit

Master artists like Josephine Hull can make such a character funny through mannerism, gesture and timing. But when a lesser actor is cast in such a part, the director can always get a cheap laugh with the entrance described above.

Such a director would pass by most mature women he saw on the street, for they simply don't fit into his stereotype. They are smoothly and simply groomed; they walk with good posture; they are dignified and alive with their life and work. Yet they are trying to kid no one into believing that they aren't 40.

One would hope that the director had to go to costume archives to find the fantastic print dress, yet it feared that grown women are still offered to grown women as flattering costumes.

Tricky necklines, oddly cut jackets, cheap jewelry garnish in the wrong locations are out for most mature women. And most of them know it. From experience with mirrors, most know that prints, shiny surfaces, raised designs and fancy weaves enlarge the figure. They cling with a wise passion to classic lines and simplicity.

The cruel caricature makes her entrance each season in many productions. Fortunately, most mature women can laugh heartily at the role without feeling they're laughing at themselves.

Nancy Penny is the name of the baby girl born Feb. 18 at St. Francis Hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Albert R. Cretens, 556 N. 8th St., Gladstone. The baby's weight at birth was 4 pounds and 4½ ounces. Mrs. Cretens was Nancy Major.

Regular rest and a careful bathing routine, two basic health rules, are also fundamental to a sound beauty regimen. Clothes and cosmetics will do little for the girl who neglects either of these beauty "musts."

One of the most pleasant ways of getting your full share of both, especially now that the thermometer is headed upward, is to combine them occasionally.

"Tomorrow," said Johnny, "you can eat that small change. And the limping goose bank, too. Although I suggest you use some salt and pepper on it. I imagine your stomach is pretty tough, but the bank is made of bronze and it may be hard for even you to digest."

"Get out of here!" cried Alice Cummings.

"Baby," said Johnny, "I'm going."

He opened the door and went toward the elevator. She ran after him. "Wait!" she called.

Johnny punched the button for the elevator.

"A rivederci! Auf wiedersehen—goodbye."

The elevator door opened.

"Forty thousand. Tell Mr. Carmichael I'll take forty thousand."

Johnny grinned nastily and pushed the "down" button.

On the first floor he walked through the lobby, winking at the switchboard operator. Outside the apartment house, Kilkenny stood by the door. And at the curb was the Lucky Clover taxicab, with Harry Flanagan standing by the door.

"All right, Fletcher," Flanagan sang out. "I'm through monkeying around with you."

Kilkenny closed in from the side. "Now, you and me are going to have this out!" he snarled.

Johnny danced aside. "Do you boys know each other? You're both being played for suckers by Alice Cummings."

Flanagan and Kilkenny had apparently never met before. Both looked at each other with hostile eyes.

"Who're you?" barked Flanagan.

"Punk!" sneered Kilkenny.

"Goodbye, now," called out Johnny. He turned and ran swiftly down the street. Both Flanagan and Kilkenny made as if to take after him, but each was suspicious of the other. When he reached the corner, Johnny stopped and looked back.

Flanagan and Kilkenny were facing each other, both gesticulating angrily.

Sam Cragg was free, but he was 35 miles from New York City, without a nickel in his pocket. And the Law was after him.

They'd be after him. He walked swiftly up a street, cut through an alley and saw railroad tracks. This was safer than the highway, he thought.

Of course he had no money, but Johnny and he had ridden the rods in the days of old.

A long platform was ahead of him. There were two or three people waiting for a train. Sam went up to one of the men. "When does the next freight train go through here?" he asked politely.

"Freight train? I don't think I've ever seen a freight train on this line."

"All railroads have freight trains," insisted Sam. "How else would they move their freight?"

"Search me. All I know is that there's my train coming right now."

A train, pulled by an electric engine, rolled smoothly into the depot. The few passengers on the platform began to board it. Sam looked around him, caught sight of a blue uniform at the far end of the platform. He sprang for the steps of a car, scrambled in.

The train began to move. Sam went in and found a seat. The conductor entered the front of the car, scanned the tickets of the passengers, stuck into the metal wedges beside the windows. He took a ticket from a new passenger, came down to Sam.

"Ticket?"

"Huh? Uh, didn't you get my ticket at the last station?"

"I don't believe so," said the conductor. "I'd have left the slip there." The conductor indicated the ticket wedge by Sam's window. It was empty.

"I was sure I gave it to you," grumbled Sam.

"I'm sorry, you didn't."

Sam began to search his pockets. Deliberately he explored his coat pockets, then stood up and went through his trouser pockets. The conductor waited patiently.

"I know I bought a ticket," Sam insisted.

"You may find it later."

"Yeah, sure—I'll give it to you later. When I find it."

"I'm afraid I'll have to have it now. Or the price."

"How much is it?"

"To Grand Central? A dollar, ten."

"Okay, I'll pay." Sam thrust his hand into his trousers pocket, showed exaggerated alarm "Holy smoke!" Quickly he reached into his breast pocket. "My wallet! I left it at home on the piano."

"You have no money then," said the conductor. "And no ticket."

"Tell you what, buddy," Sam suggested, "I'll pay you tomorrow."

The conductor had played the game all the way. But he was an old hand at this sort of thing. He said nastily, "You'll get off at the next station."

"I can't," cried Sam. "I've got to get to New York. It's—its important."

"You'll get off," snapped the conductor, "or I'll kick you off."

"You and who else?" challenged Sam.

The train was already slackening speed for the next stop. The conductor pointed to the door. "Out!"

"I asked you, who's going to make me?"

"I'll call a policeman," the conductor said. "It's against the law to try to swindle the railroad out of a fare."

The word "policeman" was enough for Sam.

New Plane Doubles As Helicopter

Pictures below show Bell XV-3 Convertiplane, just unveiled by Bell Aircraft in Ft. Worth, Tex. The rotor-propellers are mounted on the wing, will act as helicopter rotors during take-offs and landings. Then, they will be tilted forward to act as propellers when the plane attains cruising speed. The tilting arc is 90 degrees and takes 15 seconds to make the changeover from aircraft to helicopter drive. As a conventional plane its top speed is over 175 mph, 50 mph faster than most helicopters fly. It is 30 feet long, has a 30-foot wingspan and operates on a single engine positioned behind the pilot. Developed for the U. S. Army, the Convertiplane is expected to contribute to air safety and the development of heliports instead of large airports.

Boy Scouts Here Now Preparing For Legion Convention

Members of Boy Scout Troop 400, the Drum and Bugle Corps, are rehearsing regularly in preparation for their appearance in the U. P. American Legion convention in Manistique June 16, 17, 18 and 19, Louis Rogers, troop leader, reports.

Approximately 44 boys report for training at the National Guard Armory, he states, and all former members with exception of three are back in the corps this year. Some openings remain, however, he added.

Bob Corson, All-U. P. football center, has been elected junior assistant Scoutmaster for the bugle section and Carl Maynard, junior assistant for the drum section. Tom Grimsley is senior patrol leader for the drums and George Philion for the bugles.

Practice and travel uniforms—purple and gold coveralls in the style of the uniforms of the Texas Christian Horned Toads—are available for corps members this year. The coveralls were provided by American Legion Post 83 and will be worn by Scouts as soon as they begin outdoor practice.

Members of the corps now are rehearsing with fast-stepping routines and new numbers for the Legion convention.

They also are making plans for a court of honor here in April. Scouts in the corps will be advancing in every rank at that time, Rogers announced.

There are 2,058,144 farm boys and girls enrolled in 86,660 4-H Clubs in the United States.

City Briefs

City crews today began laying 54 feet of new 20-inch sewer pipe which collapsed last week near the Manistique River outlet into Lake Michigan.

Excavating was completed Saturday by city crews and old pipe has been removed.

The collapsing was probably caused by heavy equipment passing over the pipeline over a period of years, the manager said. When old sections of the pipe caved, the sewer line plugged.

Mrs. Cornelia Vincent was dismissed Wednesday from Schoolcraft Memorial Hospital and is convalescing at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burley, Manistique Heights.

Miss Jennie Barnes, of Milwaukee, visited here recently with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Barnes Delta Ave.

Farm Income Is Topic For Cooks Meeting Wednesday

Farmers and farm homemakers are invited by the county agricultural agent, Clayton D. Reid, to the Farm and Home Progress meeting to be held at Cooks School Wednesday at 1 p. m. when Michigan State college specialists in Upper Michigan will present a program on practical methods of increasing net farm income.

The theme of the meeting, "In 55, plan to thrive," is more than a catchy slogan, Reid notes, adding that it is a real challenge for farmers to take a good look at their business. The program will offer ideas and suggestions for increasing farm income and lowering operating costs.

Successful farm operations and family living are the result of planning—planning that may need to be revised from time to time to meet changing conditions; and which takes advantage of every new development that has practical application to the farm business and home, the county agent points out.

The 1955 chapter of "Farming in the Upper Peninsula," as it affects farm costs and the cost of living for the farm family, will be reviewed by R. T. Hartwig, agricultural economist. He will use colored slides to illustrate trends in farm operating costs and how they may be reduced. Changes in both food marketing methods and eating habits, as they affect farm operations, will be discussed by Hartwig.

Floyd Hicks, district horticultural and poultry agent, will review cultural practices necessary for successful production of strawberries on a commercial basis. The future of the strawberry industry in the Upper Peninsula, newer varieties, weed and disease control and marketing will be discussed.

Hicks will also report on research work at the U. P. Experiment Station in comparing nesting materials in the production of clean eggs review basic management practices that will help poultry farmers in the cost-price squeeze.

Mrs. Velma Huston, Home Economics Extension Supervisor, will present pertinent information on the financial outlook for family living in 1955, and C. J. Little, Roy Skog and William Cargo, extension specialists in dairying, forestry and farm crops, also will contribute to the program.

Unlike well-known Amoy, Quemoy only lately has come into prominence as one of the Chinese Nationalists' strongest offshore bases. With its neighbors—another island called Little Quemoy and several islets—Quemoy has remained continuously under Nationalist control since the Reds took over southern China in 1949. At that time the Reds made strenuous efforts to capture the Quemoy group but were repulsed.

QUEMOY: CORK IN THE INVASION BOTTLE—If the Chinese Communists really mean to invade Formosa, then they'll attack the Quemoy's first. For Big Quemoy, 2000 yards of the Chinese mainland, stands like a cork in the bottle from which the Reds would want to pour the 220,000 troops they have concentrated opposite this desolate, 50-square-mile island. Quemoy's position is precarious and without tremendous outside support well-nigh indefensible. Tough Gen. Liu Yu Chang, Quemoy commander, says it can't be done without U. S. air cover. The Communist mainland surrounds it on three sides. One third of it is covered by guns from the 440 Red artillery emplacements opposite. Quemoy must be supplied by sea or air, but has only one poor airstrip. It is garrisoned by 50,000 Nationalist troops, guided by a U. S. military advisory group. It serves as a base for guerrilla raiders and for thousands of Nationalist spies who are smuggled into Red China to get intelligence reports.

Holy Name Halts Rockets, 78-68, For 11th Victory

The Holy Name Crusaders, who had an eight-game victory string snapped last week by Stephenson, got back on the win wagon here Saturday night by halting the fast-moving Rapid River Rockets 78-68.

Coach Tom St. Germain's Crusaders, still riddled by the absence of seven varsity players for breaking training rules, scored first in the game and never let Rapid River catch up. They opened up a 27-18 edge in the first period and led by as many as 22 points in the third and fourth quarters.

John Berrigan, junior pivotman, received timely scoring aid from forward Denis McGinn to lead the Crusaders to their 11th win against four losses. McGinn, dead-end under the bucket, flipped in 10 field goals and five free throws for 25 points. Berrigan scored six goals and 13 of 15 free throws for the same number.

Fouls Hurt Rockets
Berrigan's 25 points boosted his season total to 395 for an average of 26.3 per game.

The Crusaders used Rapid River's pressing defense as their main weapon. They took full advantage of 25 fouls called on the Rockets to score 26 points from the foul line, missing only 17 gift shots.

Rapid River outscored the Crusaders 31 goals to 26, but had only 20 shots from the free throw

Sandy Saddler Defends Crown

NEW YORK (P)—Sandy Saddler, the longest reigning current boxing champion, takes his featherweight title out of moth balls Friday for the first time since 1951 to defend against Teddy (Red Top) Davis, of Hartford, Conn., at Madison Square Garden.

When Saddler first won the crown by knocking out Willie Pep in 1948, Marcel Cerdan was mid-leweight king and Joe Louis had just knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott in their famous rematch. Sandy lost the title back to Pep, won it again and defended it once before he went into the Army in 1952. He hasn't made the 126-pound weight limit since '51.

In the same national tournament, Ulland, competing in the boys' class, stole the thunder by outjumping the entire field by a wide margin. He won the U. S. Class C Title.

Then there are other threats like Johnny Bednarz, of Iron Mountain, 1952 Olympic alternate who is coming into his home town after two years in the Army; Roy Sherwood, of Salisbury, Conn., No. 2 jumper in the east; Jack Hooper, of Iron Mountain, 1955 Class B national champion; Len Johnson, of Duluth, Minn.; Ted Lahner, of Eau Claire, Wis.; Marvin Crawford, of Steamboat Springs, Colorado; and Jack Bieltz, of Ishpeming, Mich.

Those are a few of the youths who are going to make it tough sledding for Art Tokie, of Chicago; Art Devlin, of Lake Placid, N. Y.; Wilbur Rasmussen, of Neenah, Mich.; Ralph Bieltz, of Ishpeming, Mich.; and Billy Olson, of the University of Denver. They were on the 1952 Olympic team and will be here for another crack at it and a trip to Cortina, Italy next year.

In This Corner

With Ray Crandall

Holy Name's classy junior center John Berrigan is probably the most consistent scorer ever seen in these parts. John has never dipped below 22 points in any game this season and has been in the 20's in all of his games except one, when he climbed to 37 against Bishop Baraga. His average from the free throw line must be fabulous. We have a record only of his home games, and in the last four of them he has hit on 42 of 48 shots from the foul line.

Barry Mussatto, one of the Peninsula's most talented basketball players, is back in action for the Gwinn Model Towners and will be in the lineup when they play at Holy Name Saturday night. Mussatto saw action in two periods and scored 10 points as Gwinn defeated Eben 76-62 Friday night. Forward Jack Ghiardi, who took over Gwinn's scoring reins after Mussatto suffered a broken finger, hit 31 against Eben to raise his season total to 345.

The Gladstone Braves, who are setting dead aim at the Great Lakes Conference basketball championship, proved their all-around team ability at Marquette Friday night. With slick John Quinn effectively bottled up in the center, the Braves shattered Marquette with deadly shooting from outside. And when the Redmen abandoned their collapsing zone defense late in the fourth period Quinn was quick to take advantage. He whipped four vital buckets in the closing minutes to chill any hopes Marquette had for an upset.

When the Houghton Gremlins blasted Baraga 103-83 Friday night it marked the second straight week Coach John Gaffney's charges topped the 100-mark in scoring. Last week the veteran Gremlins pumped in 106 points against Sacred Heart of Laurium. Houghton wasn't pouring it on, either, as 16 Gremlins saw action in the game against Baraga.

Iron Mountain's last-second loss to Kingsford, 70-69, Friday night left the Iron River Redskins alone at the top of the heap in the Menominee Range Conference. That makes it a double championship year for the Redskins who also won the Range grid crown.

Final U.P. Cage Games Are On Tap This Week

Upper Peninsula high school basketball teams enter their final week of the regular season as tournament time draws near.

Final games will be played this week and district tournaments open throughout the Peninsula next week, starting on Wednesday night in some districts.

In this area, the Gladstone Braves have the most vital final game on tap. Coach Cappy Keil's Braves play at Manistique Friday night and a victory would give them the Great Lakes Conference championship.

The Escanaba Eskymos close out their season by entertaining the Kingsford Flyers. Kingsford proved itself a dangerous foe by defeating highly-ranked Iron Mountain Friday night.

Holy Name will be back in action Saturday night, entertaining the Gwinn Model Towners.

Manistique also plays Saturday night, closing out the regular season on Stephenson's court.

Five U.P. Fighters Win Milwaukee Titles

MILWAUKEE (Special To Press)—Five Upper Peninsula Golden Gloves boxers punched their way to championships in the Milwaukee Journal tournament here Saturday night.

Four U. P. novice battlers won titles to give the Escanaba team the novice team trophy. Four centers, Escanaba, Marquette, Fond du Lac and Milwaukee, were represented in the Journal tournament.

The biggest victory of the night was posted by Manistique's veteran Harvard Lancour, 126-pound open division featherweight. Lancour, four-time U. P. champion, earned a clear-cut decision over Milwaukee's highly rated Valento Ybanez.

Lancour took the play away from Ybanez with a flashing left hook that found its target repeatedly. Ringsiders were astounded at Lancour's ring mastery over Ybanez who has an impressive record of over 100 amateur bouts behind him.

Goes To Chicago
Both fighters were fast and clever and threw lightning punches for three rounds. Lancour, who was also the open division featherweight in Milwaukee in 1953 and the novice champion at 135 in 1952, will move on to the Chicago Tournament of Champions which opens next Monday, Feb. 23. Semifinals and finals will be on March 1 and 2.

Lancour's team mate Buddy Holmberg defeated Glen Fink of Marquette for the 126-pound novice championship and earned the Joey Sangor trophy with his title. Holmberg buried left hooks to the body and fired heavy blows to the head in the first two rounds, staggering his opponent in the second, to get the unanimous decisions. Fink came back strong in the third but was unable to overcome Holmberg's early lead.

Vern Olli, Marquette's classy southpaw, won the 147-pound novice title in spite of a badly infected tooth that almost forced him to default in the finals. Olli used an effective left hand to the head and tossed hard right hooks to carry the first two rounds and the decision over David Holm of Marquette.

Marinette Fighters Win
Olli was the iron-man of the Upper Peninsula tournament, fighting and winning four battles to wade through a large field of novice welterweights to earn the Milwaukee trip.

Marinette contributed two champions to the Upper Peninsula team. Frank Dory defeated Louis Gauthier of Marquette in the 112 novice class. Dory threw effective rights to the head to earn the nod of all three judges.

Jim McVane defeated Lewis Gurney of Marquette for the 118 novice championship. McVane fired a steady stream of blows at his foe and landed enough of them to cop the verdict. He staggered Gurney with a left hook and right to the head in the second round.

Mastaw Knocked Out
The three Upper Peninsula fighters who lost in the finals were from the American Soo team.

Brian Mastaw, heavy-handed open division middleweight, was unable to reach Tommy Lewis of Milwaukee with his hard punches. Mastaw was dropped with a short right to the head in the first round and again in the third and was unable to beat the count, losing on a KO.

Vern Coutant suffered a third round TKO to Carl Schwindler of Fond du Lac in the novice light heavyweight title bout. Coutant had landed hard left hooks to stay even with Schwindler through the first two rounds but ran into a booming right in the third and went down for an eight-count before the referee stopped it.

John Raskis, Soo's 160 novice champ, lost an extremely close decision to Keith Head of Fond du Lac.

The Escanaba Hawks, whose second place position in the Northern Michigan - Ontario League standings remained secure over the weekend, will travel to Houghton tonight to battle the Portage Lake Pioneers who moved up to third place by trimming Calumet 11-3 yesterday.

Escanaba, idle while the Ice Revue was in progress here, won a 6-4 exhibition game at Stambaugh Saturday night. Joe Nogalo scored twice and Joe Ricci, Dick Johnson, Buddy Provo and Floyd Stac once each for the win over the Stambaugh Red Wings who had Hawk goalie Ben Artwisch in the nets. Mike Goymerac tended the Escanaba goal.

Portage Lake's win over Calumet yesterday moved the Pioneers up to within two points of the Hawks in the league standings. Escanaba is in second place with 20, trailing only the Canadian Soo Esquires who have 28.

Advance Ticket Sale
Saturday night the Calumet Radars turned back the Marquette Sentinels 9-7, after suffering an 8-3 setback at the hands of the Marquette sextet Thursday night.

That leaves Calumet and Marquette tied in the league cellar with 16 points apiece.

League action steps up this week with five games scheduled. The Hawks will return to home ice at the exhibition building Sunday afternoon at 2:15 against the Marquette team. They will also be at home next Tuesday night at 8:15 against the Pioneers.

An advance sale of tickets is being promoted for the final two Escanaba home games in an effort to boost the team out of the red for the season. Tickets will be on sale here all this week for the last two home stands.

Pioneers Have Chance
Portage Lake has the best chance of climbing in the standings this week. The Pioneers, host to Escanaba tomorrow night, travel to Marquette Thursday and then return home Sunday to entertain the Canadian team in a valuable four-point game.

The Canadians also play a four-point game Saturday night at Calumet.

Player-coach Mark Olson of the Hawks reports all team members in good shape for the trip to Houghton. Only Bill Suriano, spare wing, is on the injured list with a wrenched back. Artwisch will make the trip from Stambaugh to tend the nets for the Hawks.

Hasty Road Winner Of Widener Race

MIAMI, Fla. (P)—Hasty House Farm's Hasty Road won Saturday's $132,800 Widener race by beating Brookmeade Stables' Capeador.

Gophers Favored In Wisconsin Cage Tilt

CHICAGO (P)—Wisconsin's Badgers tonight battle Minnesota, the Big Ten basketball leader, with little more than the home-floor advantage in their favor.

While the Gophers are picking on Wisconsin, third-place Illinois and runnerup Iowa will be locked in a struggle for survival at Champaign.

A defeat would, for all practical purposes, eliminate the Illini from the race. Iowa must win to maintain its hopes for an undisputed title.

Minnesota is in an ideal position. Following the Wisconsin game, the Gophers play host to Iowa and Wisconsin at Minneapolis. Minnesota is unbeaten at home this season.

The Iowa-Minnesota game next Monday night may settle the conference race.

Illinois must beat Iowa and hope the Hawkeyes can whip Minnesota if the Illini are to move into serious title contention.

Minnesota and Iowa have two losses each and Illinois has three.

Aside from the Iowa game, Illinois has another toughie coming up at Northwestern where both Iowa and Minnesota suffered defeat. Other Illinois games are against Michigan and Ohio State at Champaign. Both were defeated by the Illini away from home.

Iowa has a pair of games against Michigan, rounding out its schedule.

All three contenders came through with away-from-home victories Saturday.

Minnesota defeated Michigan, 74-65, in a nationally televised test; Iowa dumped Michigan State 78-69; and Illinois avenged an earlier defeat by trouncing Wisconsin, 99-71.

In other games, Purdue trounced Ohio State 82-70 and Northwestern won its first Big Ten game away from home at the expense of Indiana, 85-78.

Advice For Those Who Own Business

(Seventh of 12 articles)
By RICHARD A. MULLENS
Written for NEA Service

The businessman will not find much change in the 1954 schedule for reporting the profit or loss from his business or profession. It is still called Schedule C and is a separate form which must be attached to Form 1040.

Although the form looks much the same, there have been important changes in some of the complicated rules for business, such as reserves for estimated expenses and prepaid income, research and experimental expenditures, and depreciation.

These changes are extremely technical. If your business income is large enough to warrant professional advice, it is well worth while having an expert give his personal attention to your tax situation under the new Code.

Some of you, however, may have only a small sideline business with relatively little property and income. If you have kept proper records during the year, you should be able to fill out Schedule C yourself with the help of the official instructions and this article of the Tax Primer.

Only persons in business by themselves should use Schedule C. This means the man who owns his own shop or practices a profession by himself. Do not use Schedule C to report income from a partnership or any payments received as an employee.

Even though you are an employee, you must also operate a separate business on the side. In that case, report your employee income on page 1 of Form 1040 and your business income and expenses on Schedule C.

Before filling out Schedule C, read over the information on Page 7, of the official instructions under "Business or Profession." Then refer to a copy of Schedule C as you read the following tips:

Line 1 calls for your total receipts. This is largely a matter of keeping adequate records throughout the year. If you made any allowances for returned goods, rebates, or discounts, subtract such amounts from your total receipts as indicated on the form.

If you produce, buy or sell merchandise, use lines 2 to 10 to compute and deduct the cost of the goods sold. The important thing in this computation is to show the correct amount of inventory on hand at Jan. 1, 1954, on line 2, and the inventory on hand at Dec. 31, 1954, on line 9. The official instructions tell how to figure inventory.

You may have difficulty in determining which expenses you may deduct on the various lines provided. Deductions must meet the following three requirements:

1. Expense must be incurred in your trade or business.
2. Expense must not be for a capital item. This means that if you buy something which would ordinarily last more than one year or if you improve your property, such expenditure is not deductible except through depreciation spread over the life of the property.
3. The expense must be ordinary and necessary in the carrying

IMPORTANT: If you have more than one business, a separate page 1 must be completed for each business. Page 1 should be completed and filed showing the aggregate net profit from each business.

SELF-EMPLOYMENT TAX of mythical businessman is computed in this fashion. List of those exempt is printed on instruction.

on of your business
Do not deduct expenditures from your business for your own personal or family comfort.

Deductions are allowed to professional and business men for expenses incurred in attending business conventions in other cities. However, if you take your wife or family along as part of a vacation, their expenses cannot be deducted.

If it turns out that your deductible expenses exceed your business income, you will end up with a net loss on line 24 of Schedule C. This loss can be deducted from your other income reported on Form 1040.

If the loss exceeds your other income, you have a net operating loss which can be used to offset income in other years.

Some taxpayers may have special circumstances which require adjustments to the losses. If you have a loss, it is advisable to check the computation with your tax collector or tax advisor.

Page 3 of Schedule C contains spaces for computing the self-employment tax which most business men have to pay. This is the tax that buys social security benefits.

For 1954, the tax is three percent of the first $3600 income. If you are also employed and have the social security tax deducted from your wages, the three percent self-employment tax is applied only if such wages are less than $3600 and then only on the difference between $3600 and such wages. If your business income is less than $400, there is no self-employment tax imposed.

This tax does not concern you if you had no income from a partnership, business or profession. And many people with such income are not subject to the tax, including most professional persons, ministers and farmers. A complete list of people and income not subject to the tax is shown on the back of Schedule C. Note that you may have self-employment income as a member of a partnership. Partnership income itself is computed on a separate return (Form 1065). This is an information return which shows how the partnership income is divided among the partners. Each partner then reports his share of the income on Form 1040 where it becomes part of his taxable income.

Let's assume you have income from a business, profession, or partnership and it is not the type of income listed under "Exclusions" on the back of Schedule C. The tax will not be more than $108. It will be less if your self-employment income is less than $3600 or if you had wages from which social security tax was deducted.

Be sure to fill out Schedule C-a at the bottom of page 3 carefully and completely. This information establishes your rights to valuable social security benefits. Note that only one name is shown on Schedule C-a. If both you and tax to pay, use a separate Schedule C and C-a for each.

After you have completed the separate Schedule C, transfer the net profit or loss to line 1 of the Schedule C Summary on Page 2 of Form 1040 and the self-employ-

Parents Of 2 Find Out That They Are Brother And Sister

HEREFORD, England (AP)—Mr. and Mrs. Geoffrey Hughes have discovered after three years of marriage and two children that they are brother and sister. Already separated by the grim knowledge, they are working on an annulment.

The 24-year-old mother told reporters today the tragedy began in 1934 when her parents died and she and her brother, who is two years older, were sent to an orphanage.

Margaret was soon adopted by a family named Stanham and took their name. As Margaret Stanham she met young Geoffrey Hughes in 1948. Three years later they were married.

Their first child, Robert, is now 2 and their youngest, Michael, is five months. "Soon after Michael's birth," Margaret said, "A woman told me my real name was Hughes and that Geoffrey is my brother. I went to the registrar of births. He looked up the records and to my horror I found that the woman was right."

Says New Yorkers Are 'Filthy Lazy'

NEW YORK (AP)—New York City people are the worst in the country—and perhaps the world—about littering the streets with unnecessary rubbish and filth, says Sanitation Commissioner Andrew Muirain.

Andrew Muirain.

Muirain says it is caused by nothing more than plain "laziness and indifference" of the people. He added that more than 90 per cent of the refuse in the streets could be avoided. He asked appointment of 1,000 men to add to the present force of 40 sanitation
